Why didn't they make this before? Direct from the Ghostbusters universe and in time as a promo for the upcoming third installment of the Ghostbusters movie, you can now get your very own box of Stay Puft Marshmallows. Yes, it is possible for marshmallows to be luxurious - especially when they cost almost a buck a pop. Right on the box they proclaim to be "the world's finest..." These sugary treats are made in very small batches by hand in the US and come in a reusable collector's box (I know for a fact that I will be keeping this box forever as I was a hardcore Ghostbuster fan as a kid).

1980's Saturday morning cartoons never tasted so good. In addition to being delicious blocks of marshmallow goodness, Stay Puft brand marshmallows will keep you pumped as they are loaded with caffeine. That's right, these are energy marshmallows! At least this time the compound "giving you life" is mere caffeine and not highly concentrated Ectoplasm!

For those lacking the nostalgic fervor that makes this product so cool, Stay Puft was the brand of marshmallows that sprouted the "haunted" super-sized Stay Puft Marshmallow Man in the Ghostbusters movies. The character came from the fictional brand's mascot - who is proudly displayed in his non-massive form on the box.

What is actually cool is that the available product isn't touted necessarily as a Ghostbusters promotional item. There is only a small mention of Ghostbusters on the back of the box. The box itself is nicely made, giving you the impression it is meant to be reused after you scarf down the
